What are the Key Risks?

The value of shares in the Fund and income received from it can go down as well as up and investors may not get back the full amount invested.

Performance may also be affected by currency fluctuations. Currency fluctuations may affect the value of overseas investments.

The Fund invests principally in units of other funds (open- and closed-end, including exchange-traded funds) managed by Franklin Templeton entities or other asset managers, providing exposure to equity securities and, to a lesser extent, fixed income or floating rate debt securities (both investment grade and non-investment grade) of issuers located anywhere in the world, including emerging markets, with a bias to the Asia Pacific region. Such investments have historically been subject to price movements due to such factors as stock market volatility, general sudden changes in interest rates, changes in the financial outlook or perceived credit worthiness of securities issuers. As a result, the performance of the Fund can fluctuate over time.

The Fund may distribute income gross of expenses. Whilst this might allow more income to be distributed, it may also have the effect of reducing capital.

Other significant risks include: counterparty risk, credit risk, derivatives risk, emerging markets risk, investment funds risk, liquidity risk.

For full details of all of the risks applicable to this Fund, please refer to the "Risk Considerations" section of the Fund in the current prospectus of Franklin Templeton Investment Funds.

Glossary

Standard Deviation: A measure of the degree to which a fund's return varies from the average of its previous returns. The larger the standard deviation, the greater the likelihood (and risk) that a fund's performance will fluctuate from the average return.

FUND COMMENTARY

The Simple Way to Invest: Franklin NextStep Funds

- ➔ Simplicity—All-in-one portfolios matched to three levels of risk.
- ➔ Diversification—A broad mix of funds invested across fund managers, asset classes and countries.
- ➔ Expertise—Professionally managed to navigate the ups and downs of the market.

Fund Description

For investors who want strong long-term return potential and are more comfortable with a higher level of volatility.

Performance Highlights

- Franklin NextStep Dynamic Growth Fund depreciated in the fourth quarter and underperformed its benchmark index.
- Fixed income fund selection weighed on relative results, with both the global and Asia segments detracting. Equity selection within emerging markets also had a negative impact.
- The portfolio's asset allocation weighed on relative returns. An underweight to fixed income was the largest detractor. The portfolio's currency positions had a positive impact.
- The top three detracting funds in the portfolio were Investec Global Strategy Fund – Asian Equity, Templeton Asian Bond Fund, and Amundi MSCI EM Asia.
- The top three contributing funds in the portfolio were Templeton Asian Smaller Companies Fund, Comgest Growth Emerging Markets Fund, and Amundi Funds II – Pioneer US Fundamental Growth.
- For Investec Global Strategy Fund – Asian Equity, stock selection in communication services, industrials and consumer discretionary detracted from relative returns. On a regional basis, the performance of the fund's holdings in China, which is among the largest exposures for the portfolio, weighed on relative results during the quarter.
- Templeton Asian Bond Fund's hedges with negative US interest rate duration and a short position in the Japanese yen caused underperformance in the quarter, offsetting gains from India and Indonesia currency and duration exposure.
- For Amundi MSCI EM Asia, weak performance by East Asian markets relative to other emerging markets led to underperformance by the fund versus the broader emerging markets index.
- Strong selection in information technology and health care drove Templeton Asian Smaller Companies Fund to outperform the broader Asian benchmark and its own small cap benchmark. The fund's longstanding overweight to financials, along with good selection in that sector, also helped. Among countries, strong selection in Korea and an overweight to India contributed positively.
- Comgest Growth Emerging Markets Fund's higher quality and more defensive portfolio characteristics allowed it to marginally outperform the broader emerging markets benchmark in an environment in which value outperformed growth. The fund's structural underweight to cyclical commodity sectors – namely, energy and materials – helped performance. Stock selection and an overweight in Brazil contributed positively, while underweights to Korea and Taiwan also helped.
- Stock selection, particularly within the information technology, consumer discretionary and financial sectors, helped to drive outperformance for Amundi Pioneer Fundamental Growth Fund. More broadly, the fund benefitted from its focus on quality during a quarter that was relatively defensive.
- During the month of December, Franklin NextStep Dynamic Growth Fund depreciated and underperformed its benchmark index. Fund selection in fixed income was the largest detractor from relative returns, particularly in Asia. An underweight to fixed income detracted as well. Fund selection in equities was marginally positive, as strong selection in North America outweighed negative effects from other regions.

Outlook & Strategy

- Toward the end of 2018, we highlighted shorter-term concerns that tempered our enthusiasm for stocks, including a return to higher levels of market volatility. We tilted toward a more cautious outlook. A year that had already proved challenging for many investors concluded with market concerns for the sustainability of the global economic expansion, justifying our cautious approach.
- Looking at the scorecard of global growth indicators, the managers continue to see a less positive outlook than was the case in the early part of 2018. A range of indicators are slowing, not just global trade growth. However, our key measures of the health of the US business cycle remain supportive of a continued period of sustained growth.
- We are at the point of the business cycle where inflation typically rises. Many economies are operating close to capacity and labor markets are tight. However, the sharp decline in the price of oil has lessened inflationary pressures, contributing to a fall in global bond yields. We have changed the balance of our convictions among fixed income assets, modestly lowering duration overall.

The “Franklin NextStep Funds” is a collective term used to reference Franklin NextStep Balanced Growth Fund, Franklin NextStep Dynamic Growth Fund and Franklin NextStep Stable Growth Fund, all being sub-funds of the Luxembourg-domiciled Franklin Templeton Investment Funds.

Diversification does not guarantee a profit or protect against a loss. Fund allocations are provided for illustrative purposes only and the categorization of the funds as stable growth, balanced growth and dynamic growth is relative. There is no guarantee that the Franklin NextStep Funds will be allocated in a similar manner.

A Few More Words About Asset Allocation

While an asset allocation plan can be a valuable tool to help reduce overall volatility, all investments involve risks, including possible loss of principal. Because these funds invest in underlying funds, which may engage in a variety of investment strategies involving certain risks, the Franklin NextStep Funds are subject to those same risks. In addition, shareholders of the NextStep Funds will indirectly bear the fees and expenses of the underlying funds. The risks described herein are the principal risks of the Franklin NextStep Funds and the underlying funds. Typically, the more aggressive the investment, or the greater the potential return, the more risk involved. Generally, investors should be comfortable with some fluctuation in the value of their investments, especially over the short term. Stock prices fluctuate, sometimes rapidly and dramatically, due to factors affecting individual companies, particular industries or sectors, or general market conditions. Bond prices generally move in the opposite direction of interest rates. Thus, as the prices of bonds in a fund adjust to a rise in interest rates, that fund's share price may decline. Foreign investing carries additional risks such as currency and market volatility and political or social instability; risks which are heightened in developing countries. Investments in derivatives involve costs and create economic leverage, which may result in significant volatility and cause the funds to participate in losses (as well as gains) that significantly exceed the funds' initial investment. These risks are described in the funds' prospectus. Investors should consult their financial advisor for help selecting the appropriate fund of funds, or fund combination, based on an evaluation of their investment objectives and risk tolerance.
